START Documentation of Compliance Process

Start with a single manuscript

Does the manuscript apply under the NIH Public Access Policy?

If no, respond to NIH with documentation to support why compliance is not required.

All Authors for NIH awards related to the manuscript should logon to the NIHMS system via eRA Commons account information to see if the manuscript is waiting review/approval.
<http://www.nihms.nih.gov/db/sub.cgi>

Review/approve the submitted manuscript and note the NIHMS ID. Respond to NIH with documentation of compliance using the NIHMS ID. Replace the NIHMS ID with the PMCID when available. Be sure to copy the appropriate WU IBO official on any email response to NIH.

Does the copyright agreement for the manuscript permit compliance with the NIH policy?

Contact the publisher if there is no information on the copyright agreement form or if the information provided is unclear.

Submit Manuscript to PMC

Publisher submit?

Third party submit?

Author self-submit?

Contact the publisher to determine the submission status. It may be helpful to emphasize that the submission needs to be expedited in order to respond to NIH per documentation of compliance with the NIH Policy.

Third party submits the manuscript to NIHMS via MyNCBI account.
<http://www.nihms.nih.gov/db/sub.cgi>

Author self- submits the manuscript to NIHMS via eRA Commons account.
<http://www.nihms.nih.gov/db/sub.cgi>

Author will receive two emails from NIHMS:
1. Approve PDF Version
2. Approve Web Version
Author must approve PDF and Web versions as part of the compliance process.

Author will receive one email from NIHMS:
1. Approve Web Version
Author must approve Web version as part of the compliance process.

After Submission
Note the NIHMS ID. Respond to NIH with documentation of compliance using the NIHMS ID. Replace the NIHMS ID with the PMCID when available. Be sure to copy the appropriate WU IBO official on any email response to NIH.

Was the manuscript published in a journal that submits ALL NIH-funded final published articles?
http://publicaccess.nih.gov/submit_process_journals.htm

Did the Author make specific arrangements with a publisher to submit the final published article for a fee?
http://publicaccess.nih.gov/select_deposit_publishers.htm

Does the manuscript have a PMCID? Search for a PMCID using PubMed.

Searching PubMed:
View the citation using the AbstractPlus display view.
The PMCID will be noted on the lower right side of the abstract.
This is NOT the same as the PMID which is noted on the lower left side.

How to Locate and Cite the PMCID:
<http://becker.wustl.edu/pdf/PMCID.pdf>

WU IBO (Institutional Business Office) Contacts:
WUSM campus - Grants and Contracts Office
g&c@msnotes.wustl.edu
Danforth campus - The Office of Research
resoffice@msnotes.wustl.edu

Note the PMCID for the manuscript. Respond to NIH with documentation of compliance using the PMCID. Be sure to copy the appropriate WU IBO official on any email response to NIH.

Note the manuscript as "PMC Journal - In Process." Respond to NIH with documentation of compliance using "PMC Journal - In Process." Replace the "PMC Journal - In Process" with the PMCID when available. Be sure to copy the appropriate WU IBO official on any email response to NIH.

Documentation of compliance with the NIH Public Access Policy is demonstrated by:

PMCID (PubMed Central reference number)
The PMCID is assigned when a work is submitted to PubMed Central.

If the PMCID is not yet assigned, compliance can be demonstrated by:

NIHMS ID (NIH Manuscript Submission system reference number)
The NIHMS ID is assigned to a manuscript when it is submitted to NIHMS. The NIHMS ID should be replaced by the PMCID when available.
OR
"PMC Journal - In Process"
The "PMC Journal - In Process" is used for final published articles that are in the process of being submitted to PubMed Central by journals that cooperate with NIH in submitting all NIH-funded final published articles, no fee; and by journals that submit NIH-funded final published articles for a fee. "PMC Journal - In Process" should be replaced by the PMCID when available.

Where Do I Cite the PMCID? (see the following NIH Notice for more information)
NIH Notice: NOT-OD-08-119
<http://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/notice-files/NOT-OD-08-119.html>

Cite the PMCID in NIH proposals, progress reports or applications.
