F. 2

Decem: 6th 1833.

Dear Sir,

Having seen an account of a very remarkable cure, performed by you, on the person of a Mr. St. Martin, a Canadian, and that you are about to publish your "experiments and observations" on the hitherto concealed operations of Digestion, I wish you to forward ^{to} me, to this place, a copy of your works - As it is justly considered to be important both to the medical world ~~and~~ to Science in general, I feel a considerable anxiety in its pursuit -

Wishing you every degree of prosperity in your undertaking, & the gratitude of your country for your labour & persevering industry, I have the honor to be, Dear Sir, your unwearied friend.

P. Cox.

P.S. Not knowing the price of the Book, I would make the remittance.

January 2^d my dear William, - this letter, received a few days since, A happy new year, to you sending to you, I therefore take advantage of two blank pages, to say all that I have at present to communicate to you. I have just received a very friendly and affectionate letter, from Mrs. Whitney, at Middlebury, it is addressed to us, jointly, urging us to make her a visit there, this winter, and a Postscript from Senaeus, seconding Mrs. W.'s invitat--tion by every possible argument, and reminding us of the pains they took to visit us at the Prairie, strengthened by their Mothers desire to see those, whom her children love so well. Catherine also remembers us. Miss Wales has returned to her friends.

I shall be much disappointed if I do not get a letter from you tomorrow morning, the children are very impatient for your dear son gets in violent rage now and then, and threatens whom he supposes ~~to~~ ^{to have} any agency in keeping you away, even the Father of all our Mercies takes his share of blame in those fits, and is some times not easy to quell him, he is generally very good, however, and Lucretia is almost faultless, poor little boy has bun, and is still very sore, he says if Father was here he would make his sores well, quicker than I can, good night my head aches, to morrow I shall hear from you and know if you have run all the mighty prepps. 5th you see, I was dis-appointed, but this morning received your very welcome letter of 26th December, and was rejoiced to hear of your safe arrival, and health and that you are not to go to Alabama, and that your reception has been agreeable, do give my love to all our old friends, to General Stout and request him to bear a large portion to Mrs. Stout indeed I do love her very sincerely and can never forget her kindness to me in sickness. I wish I could be with you when you meet all our old friend, not long since I received a letter from Mr. Kingsberry in business which I am, will reply to, and this morning one from Major Herby which I have not seen, he is waiting to hear from you before he writes, he has then several letters to inform you of, we get on very smoothly here, the Holiday-days have broken in upon our studies for the two last weeks, but tomorrow we shall commence again with the New Year and I hope continue to improve untill you return to us, and when will that be? you say as soon as possible but that is very indifficult, but I will ^{do} for the best, Mother is well as are all our friends here. Elizabeth says she is going to write, and Sarah will add a postscript, in the course of this week, I need not say how much I feel gratified by the encomiums bestowed upon your work by the Public, I see that one of the Editors pronounced you a great Scholar, this was particularly pleasing, as on that point Samuel was ~~most~~ uneasy, as he said you nor himself were either ~~of~~ Scholars, May you see all your wishes accomplished, and be ready ere long to settle quietly with your family, who all love you so much, is the prayer of your wife, I have some intention, of going to Middlebury this Winter if my courage holds out untill an opportunity offers, but I should not like to take my children since Mrs. Whitney has left all hers, so much farther and so much longer, and I do so hate to leave them and I wish very much to see Mrs. Whitney, Samuel, D. Beaumont
